Opening lecture in the framework of the event series "Racism in Academia"

Wednesday, 2nd December 2020, 12:00, via Zoom

By Andrea Lailach-Hennrich (Politics and Public Administration)

Why is race an issue worth to discuss in academic circles? The most obvious answer is that it poses severe social injustice. In order to understand why this is the case and more importantly how we can change it we have to understand how the concept "race" works in our language. What is its explanatory and epistemic role? Does "race" pick out a real entity and if so, what kind? In my talk, I will give a brief overview of the current debate, explain why we need to talk about "race" and what the epistemic costs are if we don't.

Event series

in the winter semester 2020/21 and summer semester 2021

Why this event series? – Earlier this year, people in the US and around the world came together to protest against institutionalized racism and racialized violence.

At the Zukunftskolleg, we decided that we cannot stay silent at such a moment and expressed our solidarity with this movement. In order to translate this solidarity into action, we set up a plan of action consisting of a number of commitments.

This event series is part of our commitment to address institutional racism in our place of work, in research and teaching, in academia.
